

Wine by the Glass

orange wine.

✓ Reds

Tinto de Rulo, Pipeño / Sur, Chile 2021 - $16/$62

There's not much to this wine - what you see is what you get. It's fresh, light, friendly, funky, and still damn delicious.

Kolfok, 'Querschnitt' Rotburger & Co / Burgenland, Austria 2019 - $17/$66

Wild, brambly blackberries meet elderflower and sage and a slap of iron for good measure . You'd think Beaujolais at first, but nope - All Austrian!

Santomas, Refošk / Istria, Slovenia 2019 - $20/$78

Smells like fresh berry jam, tastes like leather and earth, and has a silky-smooth finish. Drinks like Tuscany, but all Slovenian.

Malatinszky 'Serena Ruba' Cabernet Blend / Villány, Hungary 2012 - $23/$90

Dried flowers and blackberry jam, black cherry cordial, and a sprinkle of black pepper. Made from only free-run juice and aged in Hungarian oak. Drinking really fu*king good right now.

✓ After Dinner Imbibements (3oz pours)

Nepéta, Amaro / Sicily, Italy NV - $20

Neutral grape spirit from organic vineyards in Sicily, infused with Sicilian oranges and lemon, bitter herbs - specifically Nepitella, a wild herb grown in Sicily, with a taste between mint and oregano. Savory and delicious.

Capertif 'Kaapse Dief' Aromatized Wine / Western Cape, South Africa - $19

A fortified aromatized wine from South Africa! Whhaaat! Made from press juice of Chenin Blanc and fortified with brandy. Cloves, smoke, fienbos (think what garrigue is to southern France). There's a faint reminiscence of flavored cola, too. Served chilled, but delicious over ice, too.

Los Bermejos, Malvasia Naturalmente Dulce / Canary Islands, Spain NV - $22

Late harvest Malvasia from the volcanic island of Lanzarote in the Canary Islands. Just enough sweetness, and just enough freshness. Scrumptious and rare.
